PROFESSIONAL PROFILE

Seeking entry level position in Front-End Web Development.

Hardworking, dedicated retired professional athlete with winning attitude who delivers on goals – literally -is preparing for the next chapter in life to become front end Web developer.

My goal is to remain productive member of our family and continue to achieve success in life, to become a leader and recognized expert in a field of computer science. I believe Information Technology is going to play even greater role in our life than it does now, beyond our wildest imagination.

The past twenty years had taught me how to succeed and shine in crowd, taught me resilience and discipline. I learned to fight for every moment and learn to keep winning momentum.

My past career molded my hard-working character and righteous personality. I am used to work under pressure and deliver consistent work in the least amount of time.

These attributes allowed me to achieve success and win championships and numerous personal awards. Although, my previous career is over and it soon becomes a warm but distant memory, I look forward to a bright future and challenges that a field of computer science will bring.

WORK EXPERIENCES

FedEx delivery, part-time

06/12/2020 - ongoing

Professional hockey player

I was forward , yet universal -playing in all situations- on the first line, first power-play unit and killing penalties and helping the defense

I was a high scorer, yet my priority was team success -I always passed the puck to teammate who had better chance to score

I worked hard- after game or practice, I still added conditioning on the ground

Any statistics wizards out there? I want to know the odds of picking the correct hockey player to score a goal at an exact time during a single period of hockey.

Back in the day we had a promotion with the IBEW local 1547 and you had to guess the player and that player would have to score a goal at 15:47 of the second period.

We had a guy actually do it when he picked Peter Peter Sivák to score that goal.

What are the odds of that?

Thank you.

Also, if anyone knows who that guy was that won please let me know.

Thank you.
