Hardworking, dedicated retired professional athlete with winning attitude who delivers on goals – literally -is preparing for the next chapter in life to become Front End developer.

My goal is to remain productive member of our family and continue to achieve success in life, to become a leader and recognized expert in a field of computer science. I believe Information Technology is going to play even greater role in our life than it does now, beyond our wildest imagination.

The past twenty years had taught me how to succeed and shine in crowd, taught me resilience and discipline.I learned to fight for every moment and learn to keep winning momentum.

My past career molded my hard-working character and righteous personality. I am used to work under pressure and deliver consistent work in the least amount of time.

These attributes allowed me to achieve success and win championships and numerous personal awards. Although, my previous career is over and it soon becomes a warm but distant memory, I look forward to a bright future and challenges that a field of computer science will bring.
